Welcome

In its statement of core values, The University of Iowa "recognizes its accountability to the people of Iowa and the need to exercise responsible stewardship over the intellectual and material resources entrusted to it."

That obligation is also codified in state law. As a public university, the UI and its employees are subject the Iowa Public Records Law, Chapter 22 of the Iowa Code, which establishes that most documents or records held by governmental agencies are public and subject to disclosure.

This website was created to provide an easily accessible source by which Iowans and others can make a public records request and can see public records requests made to the UI. We also offer links to information that is commonly made public through reports to the Iowa Board of Regents as well as other information of general interest.

In addition, we offer information about public records, including:

- What is the definition of a public record?
- How to make a public records request
- Who can make a public records request?
- How long does it take to process a request?
- Are there any costs to request a public record?
- Are there penalties for failure to comply with the public records law?
- Confidential records

Filing a Public Record Request

How to File a Public Records Request

You may request public records by telephone, e-mail, in person, or in writing.

- Please submit e-mail requests to public-records@uiowa.edu.
- Call (319) 384-0037 to make your request by phone.
- Send fax requests to (319) 384-0024. Please include the words “Public Records Request” on your cover sheet or at the top of your fax.
- Send written requests to: Steve Parrott, University Relations, 351A PCO, Iowa City, IA 52242.

Please be aware that requests for public records are themselves a public record. This means that the requester’s name, request, and the documents provided are all subject to public disclosure.

Who can make a public records request?

Anyone is welcome to file a request for information. The Iowa Attorney General’s Office has identified these rights for persons requesting public records: Rights for people requesting public records.

What Happens After a Request is Made?

After you make a public records request, the custodian of public records (Steve Parrott, University Relations) will acknowledge that request, usually through an e-mail.

Next, your public record is entered in a log of public records, including the date and the substance of your request.

The request is also forwarded to the offices and individuals that may have documents that are responsive to the request. For simple requests, those offices are advised to retrieve the documents and return them to the custodian, who shares them with one of the lawyers in the UI Office of the General Counsel to determine if any documents or portions of those documents should be redacted or withheld because they are confidential under law.

If there are no confidentiality issues or if confidential information can be redacted, the next step is to provide them to the requester in whatever form that person prefers: electronic, paper, CD, etc.

If the entire document or documents requested are determined to be confidential, the UI notifies the requester that the document cannot be released, citing the appropriate section of Iowa law.

Public Records Request Log

Beginning February 2013, at the end of each month, a summary from the previous month will be provided. The summary will include the same information currently provided of the request date, requester, and short description, but will also include the date completed or if the request is still pending.
